

From: Michael Jones <mdj@phys.hawaii.edu>
Subject: Program Available for Pacific-basin STEAM Teaching Conference in Kona--September 26-29, 2019 (fwd)
Date: August 28, 2019 at 9:31:05 AM HST
To: aapthawaii-l@lists.hawaii.edu

Richard Jones of UH West Oahu is co-Chair of this conference so you could contact him (richard.jones@hawaii.edu) if you have questions.

----- Forwarded message -----

Date: Tue, 27 Aug 2019 03:56:22 +0000
From: Timothy Frederick Slater <tslater@uwyo.edu>
To: "mdj@phys.hawaii.edu" <mdj@phys.hawaii.edu>
Subject: Program Available for Pacific-basin STEAM Teaching Conference in Kona--September 26-29, 2019

Aloha Michael: Tired of the same old teaching conference in the same old downtown hotels? Now, set your sights on something totally different!

The Pacific-basin STEAM Teaching Conference is held simultaneously alongside the world-class science fiction, science, and culture conference--HawaiiCon--September 26-29, 2019 at the Sheraton Kona on the Big Island of Hawai'i. Want to learn how robotics can be used in your classroom? Want to get the latest information on how Hollywood uses science to capture the audience's attention? Want to learn how to use comic books to teach your hardest to reach students?

This is the place to be! At this conference, not only will you get to attend hands-on teaching workshops with some of the best workshop leaders in the world and get science updates from outstanding research scientists and science fiction literary scholars, but you'll also get to take advantage of unusual field trips to explore Hawaii's unique bio- and geo-diversity. Moreover, CEUs, Graduate Credits, and/or PD Credits will be available.

But, what's more, you will get to meet those science fiction media personalities, authors, and actors you have always wanted to meet! It's the ultimate combination of science, technology, and society all coming together under the banner of improving K-12 STEAM teaching.

A preliminary program is available on the conference website - check us out for a unique teaching conference you won't soon forget!

. Online at www.capterteam.com/pstc